Planned lines of advance vs 4 groups of advancing divisions (7 that moved under 200 km set aside)

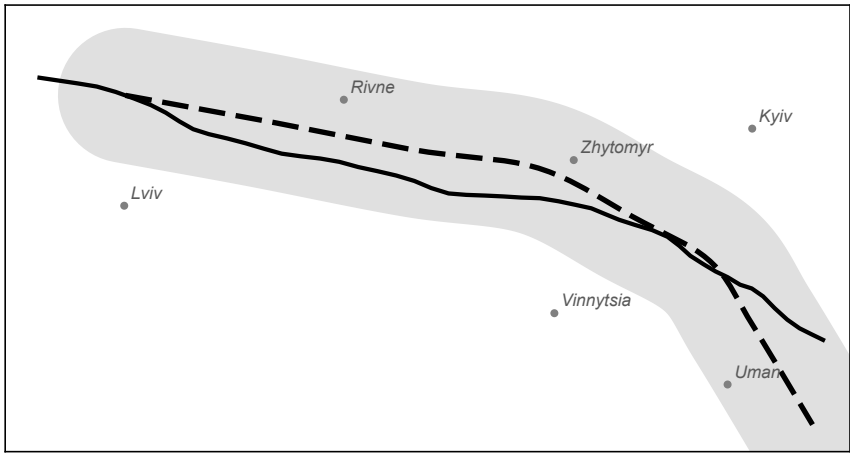

17th Army — near plan

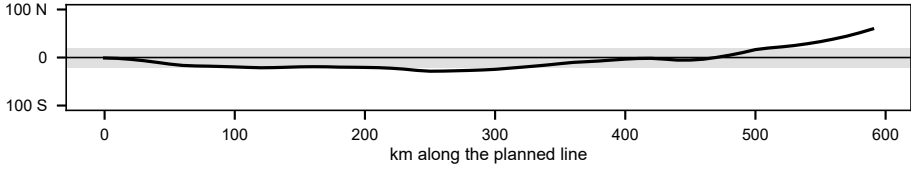

The matched group wove on average 30 km either side of the plan, inside the 50 km corridor for 100% of the way, ended 42 km from the planned end point, heading the same way. Most of its divisions belong to that formation.

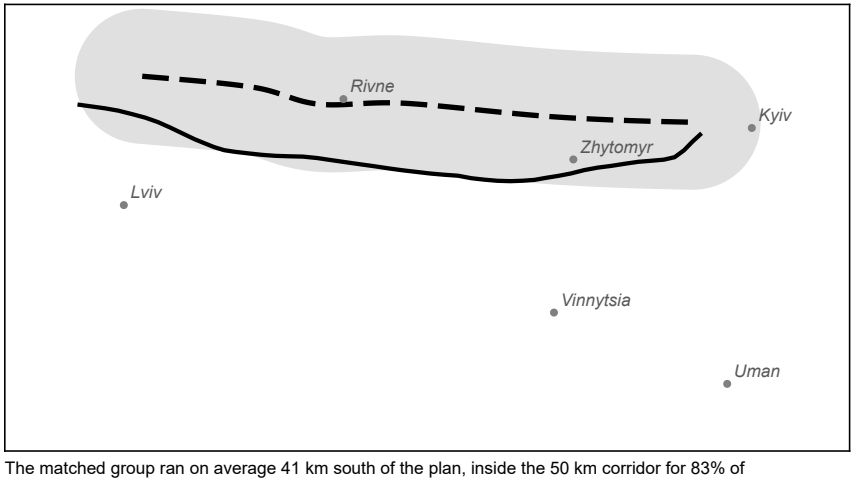

Panzer Group 1 (less III Corps) — on plan

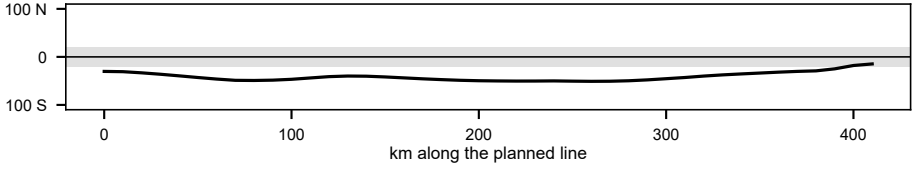

The matched group stayed within mapping error of the plan (on average 18 km off), inside the 50 km corridor for 100% of the way, ended 67 km from the planned end point, heading the same way. Most of its divisions belong to that formation.

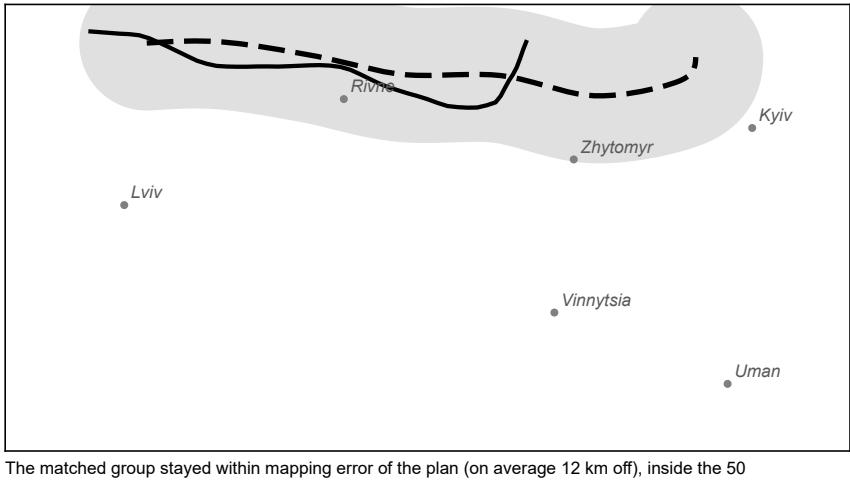

III Panzer Corps — near plan

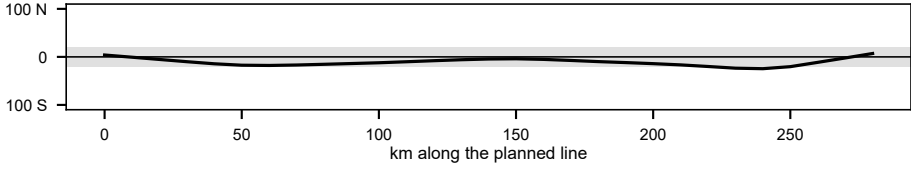

The matched group ran on average 41 km south of the plan, inside the 50 km corridor for 83% of the way, ended 15 km from the planned end point, heading the same way. Most of III Panzer Corps's own divisions ended up in another group.

6th Army — on plan

The matched group stayed within mapping error of the plan (on average 12 km off), inside the 50 km corridor for 100% of the way, ended 28 km from the planned end point, heading the same way. Most of 6th Army's own divisions ended up in another group.

Planned line of advance — Matched group's average path — Within 50 km of the plan (map) / ±20 km mapping error (strip)